On the lovely, colourful Danube

In 2014 and 2015, the cultural capital of Europe invites visitors to discover the city from a perspective on the water. In Linz, the Danube takes a turn and alters its course - and it changes here. Is it just a co-incidence that the city was founded at precisely this location on the river?

Separation and connection

Over the centuries, the river has represented both a separation and connection between the cultures and regions along its banks. As a "limes", it separated the Roman Empire from the lands of the "barbarians" north of the Danube more than 2,000 years ago. Many of the abbeys along the banks of the Danube were not only spiritual, but also powerful centres of regional development. Linz's Baroque heritage, with its extraordinary Hauptplatz (Main Square), dates back to the counter-reformation that stemmed from the churches and abbeys. Along the Danube, you will still find exemplary companies like voestalpine, which uses the Danube to ship its steel all over the world, the tradition-laden shipyard and lots of "software smiths". Linz continues to preserve its joy for life and culture. The Danube in Linz is a living stage, where priority is given to slowing down everyday life to a more leisurely pace. More than 40,000 travellers on river cruises dock in Linz ever year, and 70,000 visitors on cycling tours arrive in the city via the Danube Bike Path, which celebrates its 30-year anniversary in 2014. In Linz, many of the culinary treats and beverages offered by the local culture are directly linked to the history of the Danube. Two of these are the coffee culture and Linzer Torte, both of which have strong ties to the Ottoman past.

The colourful Danube

Over the years, Linz has unstintingly developed in relation to the Danube. This is where the Danube is colourful. But not only at night, when the unmistakable silhouettes of the cultural buildings Brucknerhaus, Lentos Kunstmuseum Linz (art museum) and Ars Electronica Center are reflected on the water by illumination effects. Linz's cityscape also leaves a lasting impression during the day, since the Danube in Linz is a space for art - an open-air museum where world-class artwork made of steel is on display.

EHF Methods Commission

Development, Education, Further Education and Training are part of the core activities of the EHF Methods Commission (MC). Numerous courses and seminars for young coaches, top coaches, young referees, delegates, referees and club managers were organised by the EHF since its foundation.

This year the EHF Methods Commission decided to organise the first Young Coaches Workshop.

This seminar is addressed to a small number of young coaches with both basic education and experience as coaches. They will be asked to prepare two practical sessions and present them during the workshop with the 2 demonstration teams consisting of players of the Austrian M98 national team squad.

The EHF Lecturers P. Kovacs / HUN - EHF MC member and initiator of this workshop and M. Petronijevic / SRB – EHF Lecturer will evaluate these training sessions in content and realisation whereas J. Boss / GER - Coach of teams and people in high-performance situations in sports and business will provide feedback on performance, soft skills and communication with the team.

In addition the participants will have the chance to see some matches of the M20 ECh matches and learn from the national teams of the participating nations.

We are looking forward to meeting you in Linz. The MC remains with best regards,
